proposed to be replaced by the end of the 12th Plan, as these helicopters are old and inadequate for the present operational requirements. Also, Advanced Light Helicopters are being gradually inducted in the Indian Army for light utility roles. The Indian Air Force utilizes Cheetah, Mi-17 / Mi-17 IV and Advanced Light Helicopters for operating at high altitude and low temperatures. Government constantly reviews the security environment and accordingly decides to induct appropriate equipment and to make other arrangements for adequate defence preparedness.
